Bedding

- Count: represents the thickness of cotton yarn. The higher the count, the finer the yarn. The more delicate and smooth the fabric will be, and the better the gloss will be.
- Generally speaking, one or two cotton yarns are spun into 40 meters long cotton yarn, which is 40 counts (40s). One or two cotton yarns are spun into 60 meters long cotton yarn, which is 60 counts (60s). The higher the count of yarn, the finer the yarn, the thinner the fabric, and the softer and more comfortable the fabric.
- Obviously, the higher the count of rice cloth, the higher the quality requirements of raw materials (cotton). And the requirements for yarn mills and weaving mills are also relatively high, so the higher the cost.
- Our Special process
The cotton yarn we use is combed yarn with less impurities and uniform cotton yarn, so we can weave better fabrics.
The loom also chooses imported air-jet weaving, so the fabric is more durable and washable than the ordinary combed fabric on the market.
The difference of fabric quality is not only the difference of density, but also the choice of cotton yarn and weaving machine.

Maybe you have noticed that some hotel mattresses will be covered with a protector when they live in star hotels. We can probably guess what the role is mattress protector more better use. Because different people live in the hotel every day, besides increasing the comfort of the mattress, the biggest role of the mattress is to facilitate cleaning and protect the mattress.

The main functions of the sheets are skin friendly and beautiful, very limited water absorption capacity, which will affect the life of the mattress for a long time.

The mattress protector has padding in the middle .It can avoid a lot of moisture directly into the mattress.Because mattress used every day, get dirty very fast.For example, sweat stains, human metabolites, accidentally spilled drinks, children's urine stains, or embarrassing marks of female physiological period.

Thin bed sheets cannot effectively block these dirty things, and the mattress will become the favorite greenhouse for mites to breed, affecting sleep health.

By the way, the mattress is usually thick and heavy, and it is hard to clean.

Compared with the bedspread, the mattress protector is thicker and can "stop" dirty things .

At ordinary times, you only need to clean the mattress protector, saving the trouble of cleaning the mattress.

Washing information

Several improper washing methods can easily cause damage:

- 1) Incorrect feeding time during washing: feed in case of insufficient water in the machine, pay special attention to bleach chemicals, which will easily cause the detergent to concentrate on parts of the cloth and cause damage.
- 2) Improper use of bleach. In case of misuse of detergent, appropriate products should be selected for different stains. 3) Excessive amount of washing, incomplete cleaning, and residue on clothes.
- 3) Clothes with zippers and clothes easy to hook and pilling are mixed.

Common problems and solutions during washing:

1. There is rust stain on the bed sheet (towel). After being treated with oxalic acid, put it into the machine for washing. After washing, it is found that the rust stain is still not removed. Acidizing treatment is the last process in the laundry process. The quality of the acid agent is very important in the laundry products. It can make up for the defects and disadvantages in the previous process, and make the washed products perfect and reach the ideal state. Some laundries often use oxalic acid, which is insufficient. Calcium oxalate precipitation will be formed in the unsoftened water and adsorbed on the fabric, making the fabric gray, hard and brittle. Removing rust with oxalic acid is not clean and temporary. This reaction Fe^{+++} (brown) Fe^{++} (light green) is a reversible reaction. After drying, the remaining Fe^{++} on the fabric will become Fe^{+++} again after air oxidation. Only by adding other acidic complexing agents or using other rust removal compounds in oxalic acid, can it form a stable complex or chelate.

2. When washing the small square towel in the catering department, the special whitening powder for laundry, chlorine bleaching powder and sodium hypochlorite were used, but the effect was not good. The reasons for serious ash were as follows:

- ① Before washing, the water quality in the washing square towel area should be known first, whether it is soft water or hard water. If it is hard water, it means that the content of calcium, magnesium and metal ions is high, so the softener must be added during washing, and the neutralizer must be used during post-treatment.
- ② When washing towels, it is better to use oxygen bleaching powder and washing powder together. Do not use chlorine bleaching powder, because chlorine bleaching powder is strong oxidizing, which is easy to damage towels.
- ③ Hard water can produce calcium and magnesium ions to form calcium and magnesium soap. Calcium and magnesium soap itself is a kind of dirt, commonly known as soap scale or alkali flower. It is difficult to remove the residual scale of calcium magnesium soap. If it is accumulated for a long time, it will destroy the fiber and pigment, make the clothes and cotton fabrics become slightly hard, lose luster, and change the color light. It is very harmful to the fiber, such as brittle, broken, and reduced fastness. Iron exists in the form of ions or ionic compounds in water. If it is deposited on the fabric or becomes brown spots, it will make the white fabric yellow as a whole, darken the color of the colored fabric, and have a certain catalytic effect on the bleach, and even cause the fabric to break.
